Local Volunteer Honored for Service to Girl Scouts

Behind every Girl Scout is a passionate volunteer cheering her on. By dedicating their time and energy, volunteers help Girl Scouts create new memories, learn new skills and make new friends that will last a lifetime.

“Every volunteer helps create exceptional experiences that Girl Scouts will never forget,” said Girl Scouts of Greater Chicago and Northwest Indiana (GSGCNWI) CEO Nancy Wright. “Whether it’s leading a troop every week, helping girls explore nature at camp or facilitating a LEGO robotics workshop, our adult volunteers serve as positive role models every day for our Girl Scouts.”

Each spring, GSGCNWI honors these adults with a special recognition ceremony. During the event, volunteers receive honors from Girl Scouts of the USA and the local council for their individual years of service helping to build girls of courage, confidence and character.

Volunteers are an invaluable resource to Girl Scouts, parents and the community. It is through their dedication that girls tap into their full potential. These volunteers maintain the legacy that is Girl Scouting, and they help develop leaders that will shape the future.

Girl Scouts welcomes adults 18 years of age and older, female and male, who are willing to volunteer their time to help mentor girls through the Girl Scout program. Volunteer opportunities exist for event facilitators, troop leaders and more. Free orientation and training sessions are available.
