

What's a Deer, Anyway?

See if you know these words that describe deer, their habitats, and their habits

- 3. Type of animal that chews its food more than once
- 5. Largest deer in the world
- 7. Active mainly at dawn or dusk

- 1. Animal that eats plants
- 2. Animals with fur or hair
- 4. Hard coverings made of horn on an animal's feet
- 6. Smallest deer in the world

You can take this one step further by collecting old copies of five different magazines that you are selling this year. You might be able to get them from your family, friends, neighbors, school, or local library. In a group, go through the magazines and find at least three words you don't know the meaning of and write them down. Look up the meanings and pronunciations. Who do you know who would be interested in what those words mean? Guess, what? Those folks are potential customers and these words are your way of getting them interested. If they ask you how you know those words, say you learned them from a magazine!

Write the word and the name of the person you thought of here:

Only a Heartbeat Away ...or Not

As a Girl Scout you have amazing opportunities to explore the world around you. Many Girl Scouts start their travels by visiting sites in their own hometowns and then their states. Some travel the United States and beyond.

Would you like to go someplace but don't know where? It takes a lot of planning. Maybe this map of the United States will help you. Pick a state you think you'd like to visit—maybe you have relatives who live there—and learn more about it. Many of the QSP magazines you sell contain valuable information about travel. Travel + Leisure is just one.

If you still can't decide, pick a state where one of these deer species lives. Then list what you would have to do to visit that state.

White tailed deer—most east of the Rocky Mountains

Mule deer—west of the Missouri River

Mountain caribou—northern Idaho, eastern Washington

Elk—mostly in the western United States through the Eastern Rockies to New Mexico,

Moose—mostly Alaska and New England, with Maine having the most in the lower 48 states
